This cannot be a Jacques and Jenks aff ir with such negotiators.

There are reasons why Abraham Lincoln will concede a good deal for peace and Union. He has but four years mora to live in politics shrewdness. He knows the men he has to to content to a government. deal with in his own party, and he knows his enemies He can hardly be misled by the clamor that the rebellion is near its end, that much longer resistance is impossible. He is well aware that the power of resistance and endurance msy ontlast the power of aggression. He may fight four years more, spend three thousand millions, and end his second term with an exhanated country and the recellion still alive. Thus he may leave to others to end what ha began. We may reascnahly suppose that he is not disposed to rnn the rick of such a result. The regro question will be his atumbling block; but he bas soid he would save the Union with slavery or without slavery, or with it abolished in some places and remaining in others. Now, if he can save the Union by dropping the whole subject of alavery out of the matter to be disposed of hereaf.er, will be not do it? We don't suppose his former declarations would be much in his way; hat it would be convenient to refer to them to justify what he disposed to do for other reasons. It may be, moreover, that foreign nations are not to be much longer trusted to remain neutral. Whether they will or not, it is impossible to guese; but they have a deep interest in dividleg this country. They have as much interest in it, as a precautionary measure for their own safely, as they ever had in any great public event The lorger this contest lasts the merc complications and irritation are produced to add to the promptings of Interest and smbitlon. 85 Abraham Lincoln must see there are dangers in delay. > A few days will solve the whole affair. What would be rational to expect in the hands of statesmen, it is, perhaps, preposterons to expect in the hands of the men at Washington and Richmond; so that whils: we may be disappointed if nothing comes of this effort for peace, we shall be surprised if anything does

Among the nations of the world which are anpposed to be excinct le Ireland. England hee conquered it, subjugated it. Five hundred years of uprestrained power-the unbridled license of a power that had nothing to luterrupt its away-have proved effectually that Ireland is a entjugated country. The ot King William, have alike used their will npon that devoted country. It is almost riendlese. No one has a word to say for it. and tew to eav say thing against it. If all the annals of history wers searched no parallel could be found. It is unright and peculiar Ireland is a congaered country.

Yet five hundred years of unresisted do minior; five hundred years of corquest and subjection, have not made Ireland quiet. It is cornaered, but not cinshed.

After all that It has borne there is now, as s well knows, a powerful organization of Iriahmen extending throng out the entire world, whose avowed object is the emancipa tion of Ireland. No matter where they may be found; under whatever rky or on whatever chore, there is a resolute, earnest body of men who have but one of ject in life, and that is the ladependence of the land that gave them

Every ci y, every town, every village where there is an Iriehman, there ie one of that order, and, in contradiction of the characteristic of the race, they are not as noisy or boisterous ac we would expect. The Feuian Brotherhood is shown rather by its developments than by

It is explained briefly and pertinently by s Mr. W. J. Hynes, the central organizer of the Brotherhood for New England:

The object of the order, he said, is not concealed. Its svowed purpose is to liberate Ireland from the despoile rule of England, not by entreary or diplomacy, but by the sword. The brath-rhood has new probably haif a million members in the United States, and by their united exertions materials of war will be raised and placed in the hands of the downtrolden people of the Enerald Isle, who will make the right use of them in breaking their chains, and establishing a free government of their own. He believed that success was certain; that although attempts in the west to liberate Ireland had failed, the organization new at work is strong ecough and resolute enough KENTUCKY AND ELSEWHERE, at work is strong enough and resolute enough to accomplish its object. Notwithstanding the beligerent attitude of the brotherhood its members were sworn to maintain faithful al-legiance to the United States. Mr. Hypes cmmenced speaking at a iste honr, maintain ng about the same ground taken by Mr. De-

This shows how the organization is in one Grand Master, Chiefs and Subordinates, is too fences, weedy fields, miserable roads and in Louisville knows there is a powerful organzation in our midst. And it is not a secret hides and bowie knives, which Abolitionists organ'zation. There is no conces'ment, no quivocation. It is an open, avowed order, whose object is the redemption of Ireland. It is strongest of course in Ireland; but even in Lordon the order numbers four or five thousand. In Liverpool it is still stronger.

Anatralia is, however, atter Ireland tha stronghold of the order. The recent disturb succe in that quarter, and the general disastisfaction there, is due entirely to the assoc'a on the day the last copy paid for is sent. This tiou of the United I isbmen or Fenian Broth-will enable all persons to keep th, ruo of their ac-ers. In Canada the order is nearly as strong or stronger than in Australia. Lincoln is a man of great practical people can never be forced by mers arms alone

It will ha recollected that the emanci pation proclamation was issued as a war meaanre by Abraham Lincoln-as a measura to put down the rebell on. Now that men have gone to Richmond to talk shout peace, sny one can see how this matter of emancipation etands in the way. If all else were arranged, there is an Impracticable point with the Confederacy. Indeed, it will stand in front, and har all negotiation. Now, with what face can measure be called a means to put down the rebellion that stands as an obstacle in the way of ending the rebellion; perhaps an obstacle in the way of any negotiation on the anhieci?

The same remark is true of confication isws, and the whole mass of legal penalties, involving liberty and life, as well as property. The negotiation begins with a promise of expurging all each laws and overlocking the osst. What better proof could there be that all anch enactments are in the way of preace

When sensible men begin to talk of peace the first step they see necessary is to expanse all such laws from the statute-book or nullify them. Is it not plain, then, that if we want States and people to geturn to the Union it pesce such laws ought to be repealed? All violations of the laws of war by our armies operate in the same direction. They are a'l ohetacles in the way of negotiation. When we come up to the practical work their ill effects are obvious. They ough! to have been equally

The deceased leaves a fortune estimated at more than a million of francs.

There is a ctory quietly circulating about Green, the murderer, which seems to justify publishing. Being visited in his cell; recently, he inquired what were the probabilties of his being hung. "Very great," was the reply. "Oh, no," said Green, "the Governor will not eign the death warrant, I am sure." "But did he not eign Desmartean't?" For want of better terms we shall distin-

For want of better terms we shall distinguish these groups as sizve-labor and white labor counties. In the white labor counties the nuniver of slaves constitutes only three and one-third per best of the population, in the slave-labor counties it equals more than as an animate of the white population.

The slave-labor counties, which contain 113,283, are seven—Woodford, hourboy, Fayette. Christian, Scott, Shelby and Clarke, these are well-known counties. The white-labor counties, containing 113 590, are eighteen—Breathit, Camphelf, Carter, Floyd, Grayson, Harlan, Johnson, Kenton, Lanrel, Laurecce, Letcher, Lawis, Marshal, Morgan, Cwaley, Perry, Pike, Whitley, To any one familiar with Kentucky these two lists of counties tell the whole story at once. But a minute examination will be very instructive.

Let us first test the fancial idea which many in all sobernous do believe or at least profess to believe, that alave labor is unprofitable—that white laborers do much more to build up the wealth of a Sate, and that in communities, where there are many slaves the whites become entirely indelent, and the slaves make very inefficient toilers. Thus slavery, as Abolitionlate appores; impoverishes a community by suppressing whice indestry, and substitutions.

itionists anomae, impoverishes a community by suppressing white industry, and substitut-ng therefor the indoient and cintary labor of

to make the comparison fair and instrucve, we put a population of 113 928, consist-o of 62 890 whites, 1 774 free blacks, and 49, The we had a population of 113 923, consisting of 62 390 whites, 1 773 free blacks, and 49, 764 rever alayes, against another population of 113 580, coesisting of 169 368 whites, 465 free blacks, and 3,757 slaves. Here we have is the white labor counties 109,368 whites, to empate with 62,309 whites in the siave labor counties, sided by about seven-ninths as many histaks. We may say that in the white labor connoises there are nearly twices as many white laborers as in the stave-labor counties, and noless the whole and lalvery world is wrong, they ought to produce more than twice as much as half their number of whites encuatered with urgro slaves. 109,000 outhit certainly to eclipse the 62,000 in every species of progress? What they have done is recorded to our national ceasan and the reports of the State Auditor. The U-fled States ceasure of 1850 shows that the 62,000 whites, with their cearnes, have kept up their farms remarks by well, even better than tha 100 000—for xamine the white labor counties have altogether. well, even better than the 100 000-107 x xm one 'he white isbor counties have slogether 91,383 carle: the seven slave labor coun-he have 90,363 eight thousand more. This well reem to cotacte with a com-mon notion that in these slaveholding coun-ter than the standard half place labor than ather have inraed their places into stock sing terms to the neglect of grain, hemp, The worte labor conuties have 119 490 sheep;

alaye labor counties have 140,210, or 20, 510 more. The white labor counties raise 286 002 hose; he share labor countles raise 207,023, or 21,- he sayes most consider state and male in the white labor countles is $565.03%; in the sayes laze labor countles it is $585.03%; in the sayes laze labor countles it is $585.069, bring $315.031 more. Now it is remarkable that when they have searcely ten per cent. more cattle and eight per cent, more hogs, their sanghtered solmals are worth 55 per cent, more. This proves that their animals are much more valuable, being either much larger much more valuable, being either much large or of much floer quality—hence they must be better farmers. In tact, the atockraising skill of the farmers of the "blue grass region" of Krutneky is a matter of tac'onal notoriety, and the premiums they hear off from national fairs are pretty good evidence that sieve labo aneccesful in stock farming.

Of butter and carees the white labor conn

Of butter and cases the white labor connices produce 1,003,899 pounds, and as this is always superintended and managed by whites we could hardly expect the 62,000 whites to do as much as the 109,000, nevertheless we find they produce 1,297,394 pounds, or nearly a fourth more. This would indicate that slave-holding lamilies are at least as industrions as the non-slaveholding; for the former produce over twenty pounds to each white person, and the latter less than ten pounds, and of inferior quality.

the latter less than ten pounds, and of inferior quality.

The white labor counties have 119,400 sheep, and produce 203 455 pounds of wool, which is less than two pounds per sheep. The slavelabor counties have 140,210 sheep, and produce 305,040 pounds of wool, which is nearly three pounds per sheep for the whole flock, old and young. Certainly they are better farmers. We know that they have the finest preeds of sheep, many of which sell at from breeds of sheep, many of which sell at from $6 to $25 each, while their fat Southdown mutton brings an axira price in market. Thus we ee slave labor is accomputed by shudsnee, thrifty management and model farming.

Doea this resemble the factiful portialta drawn by Abolitionists?

The seven elare-later conuties of Kentucky are probably not surpassed in the world for fine stock of every species. As to the equine department, the censue show what, of "borses, miles and sees," the white-labor counties have 26 555 for a population of 109,568 whites—less than one boiss for four persons. The slave-labor counties have more than twice as many-62,016 for a white population of only 62 300—many of them superb animals.

As the slave-labor counties excel in sicck, they excel still more in bay, raising 17,710 tops to 10,823 in the white-labor counties.

Presnming both populations to be equally dustrions—black and white slike, in all the laduatrions—black and white alike, in all the counties—we are led to expect that counties which so far excel in stock groying and hay crops will fail short in something else—in grain, hemp and tobacca, so as to make the grand total nearly equal. What is the tact? In tohaccas single slave-labor county vasity surpasses the whole eighlaen. They produce a crop which, valued at the average orice of five dellars per hundred, is worth $30,701; but the slave-labor counties produce a crop worth, at the same rate, $30,115, or more than ten time sa much.

The sem of figures exists as to hemp. At the rate of $100 per tun, the white labor contilee produce $101,000, but the slave-labor countles produce $1017,000.

dollars and eighty five cents to each family. One family, therefore, in the slave labor counties is worth more than four times as much to the S are (as a source of revenue) as a family in the white lebra counties.

Here let us pause a moment to note the calaminose errors arising from a mistake on this subject which a caudid sindy of statistics would have corrected. With what intemperale zale was it asserted that such a population enght to be excluded from the United States Territories necesses stated that more higher the prosperity and morals of the young territory—a population proved by the excess to be more liberal and capable of assieling in all public enterprises—more orderly, conserva-PROSPERITY AND GENERAL SOCIAL PRO-GRESS DEVELOPED BY SLAVE LABOR IN If the theory of Abalitionists be true, we public enterprises—more orderly, conserva-live and moral, and better adapted to enstaining a republican Government by their abundant meson and by their intelligence, than any other population in the civilized world. A cot liet upon this restion was inevitable A cot lice upon this mestion was inevitable, but juster views of portical economy would have deprived that confect of its violence, thus preventing secession and war, and as this contest may arise in Kentucky, it is hoped that the facts herewith submitted may tend to moderate its violence and to show that slavery is not such a misfortune or curse as to require any sparmoule effort for its removal or moderate lits violence and to skillful legislation to introduce any change which will work as well in the future as slave labor has in the past. If the angry passions of the present west in the factors as some most of the present content require acciding of our rights and interests, we should look well to the future welfare of the blacks as well as the whiter, and legislate oximity, knowing that Kestneky cannobe lojured by resisting her slave also remelter can she be raised as Jamaica was by losing it.

canno. De lojured by resisting her stave labor — neither can she be rained as Jamales was by losing it.

In making the comparison between the slave labor and whita labor counties of Kentucky wesre hat exhibiting another phase of the contrast between the labor, and slave labor, which runs throughout all history. As the slave-labor and white-labor counties of Kentucky and Calo, with this exception, that although Onlo may represent the water-labor and white-labor States. So do Kentucky and Onlo, with this exception, that although Onlo may represent the water-labor aversen, Kentucky does not fairly represent the slave-labor system, because she has not fully carried it out, and has not attained as great prespectly as other States in which slave labor is more extensively used. It is because Kentucky has so much non-slaveholding population, that she has not entirely eclipsed her originators over the river in every species of progress, If we should feare cut of our circuits into the counties which have too many non-slaveholders and what he was not entered by how stion the connies which have too many non slavebolders and take the seven glave-libe connties as the true representatives of Kon-tucky, we aboutd then see that there is no whitesteen in general prosperity. The wall makes them in general procedury. The wait of these sinve-labor counties is ever one thousand dollars to each while lababitant. At the same time (by the census of 1850), the average wealth per capita of the lababit now of sixteem now-slaveholding States was but $505. We may say that such lather result wherever we compare a people depending cutrely upon their own white labbr, with a populit in themselves supplied with slave labor. The former will have an average wealth of from one hundred to five hundred dollars per capita, and the latter will have an average wealth of over one thousand oblars per capita, or from five to ten thousand oblars per capita, for from five to ten thousand per family.

To resume our comparison between the white labor and sive labor constitutes of Kentucky, it is so took next at their farms and manu actories.

MASONIC TEMPLE .- This well known and pop ar place of amusement promises to be one of the most attractive in the city during the present week. Arlington has fully determined to make his stay here as agreeable and pleasant to our citizens as he and his great troupe are capable of dolng. He has something rich in store for them. Last night Malvida Kriel, and A. B. Connell, guardian of Cora Vansickle, approved and ordered to be recorded.

National Research of the performed as he has never done hefere, and the cutire troupe put in their "best licks," which gave universal satisfaction to the large au dience that was present. To-night we expect sec the hall crowded. The programme is a splen did one, and the performances will be fine.

VARIETIES, - There was a very fine andience las night at the Varieties. The Ryan & Calhour coupe are most excellent, chaste and original heir entertalnments never fail lo give universal atisfaction to all. Go and spend an evening with REBEL KENTUCKY SOLDIERS -"One by one the Kentucky regiments in the rebel service are passing away. We scarcely hear of tho existence of a regiment of Kentuckians who entered the rebel service at the heginning of the rebellion. There may be one o two; but they are o'd regiments that have ansfered severe lesses in battle and which have filled up with conscripts and men from other States. A number of the regiments that were recruited in this State have been disorganized on account of their term of service having expired, and the few men composing them have re-enlisted in other regiments from other States. Quits a number of men who belenged at one ilme to Kentucky regiments were espitured in the Stopeman salt raid, and their names entered upon the rolls as belong ing to Tennessee and Alabama regiments Several rebel prisoners, well known in this GLOVES, COLLARS & ROBES community and county, have passed through c':v recently en route to be exchanged, who aliated and served their time out in Kenneky regiments, and who are now soldiers belonging to regiments from other States on account of the disorganization of the :caiments to which they originally belonged.

ABREST OF CAPT. BATES -Colonel Johnson of the Fifty-second Kentucky, succeeded on est Friday in capturing the guerrillo Captoin Bates below Bowlinggreen, and brought bim o this city night before last. Butes is the man who robbed the sheriff of Christian county-some lime ago of $1,600. On the way un ne offered Colonel Johnson the amount if he would enter his name here as a "prisoner of war."

the freight extra while on its way to Jeffersonville was thrown from the track at Sugar Creek bridge, on Tuesday last, killing the firemar, whose name we have not learned The workmen on the road were repairing the track, and had taken up a rail.

TWENTY-EIGHTH KENTUCKY .- The Twenty eighth Kentucky regiment, Cel. J. R. Boone, was encomped near Huntaville, Ala., on the Shiest. They were erjoying good health. The city hospital at Indianapolis caught linguished before much damage was done. We noticed a lot of refugets being removed to the Rafuzce Home vecterday. Car clever friend Kitcham bis ou

Hon. R. J. Atkinson, late Third Anditor of the Uoite' States, I desire the services of me person as an assistant in the preparatio of claims, who has had thorough experience in the Quartermaster's and Ordnance Depart-ments of the Government. The branch of in the Quarternaster's and Ordnance Departments of the Government. The branch of business to be resigned to the charge of such assistant is that of the most intricate charger; therefore it is needless for any person not thoroughly conversant with the class of a ubilic business above alluded to apply for the position. I wish him to fill. Whoever applies must come well recommended by some well known Quarternaster or Ordnance officer of the army. Blank forms for claims, as well as letters for correspondence, will be printed, and every effort made in behalf of a good sasistant to make his labor as generously light and also profitable as poss be. What matter can be printed to coviate cierled labor in writing shall be had to the fullest extent practicable, without, of course, undue extravagance. Call at my office.

Mr. Lowry offered the following resolutions, which were ordered to be printed and referred:

Wingras, In the prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rubellion, the President of the United States, as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, has deemed it necessary to Issue a producable in the president of the Commander of the States in Insurrection to preserve the national life; and whereas, Congress, in the legitimale exercise of power, has anthorized the enrollment of and enlistment into the Federal army all able-bodied male slaves in the loyal States, and by the sovereign will of the loval people of the United States, expressed through the ballot-box in the manner and form prescribed by the fundamental law of the land, these measures of the executive and legislative departments of the Government have been fully, clearly and emphatically indorsed and approved in their practical operations, rendering African slavery, as a system of labor in Kentucky, not only valueless, but "effect and burdenome," the interance of its existence longer than is required by our constitution and laws to effectually and forever dispose of its incompatible with the sovereign will of the people (the ruling power in all free governments); a serious obstacle to the ancessful execution of measures that (whether with or without our consent) bave become the fixed policy of the Gevernment for the suppression of the rebellion; therefore,

Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentneky, That while the unformate status of the negro question has been thrus inpon as without our consent or co-operation, and is obnoxious to the prejudices and education of many of us, still it is the highest evidence of particular or most cleriched idols, and yield a will ling and cordial support to the "powers that be" it their contributions to preserve free institutions. WHEREAS, In the prosecution of the war for the appression of the rebellion, the President of the nimit of sacrince on the artars of our common unitiv our most cheri-hed idols, and yield a will-g and cordial support to the "powers that be" in licit coins to preserve free institutions.

Resolved. That it is the part of wisdom for the glisators and slate-stane of a country to accept cents that have passed beyond their control, and gardless of preconceived opinious and long cherbed ideas, to frame the laws of their country to exit the ordering necessity of their people.

Recolved. That an amendment to the Constitutional bullshing slavery is the sbortest, best and out practical mode of disposing of this vexed uestion, thereby giving constitutional sanction of the already practical freedom of the negro. Resolved. That the labor of the negro has far is trast practical importance to the agricultural inversets of the State, and such tegrislation as is seemed necessary to secure their services should e immediately taken.

The present rise will start out a large neet of low-boats and barges. The amount of coal to go on this rise will reach 1,603,000 bushels; including in this some 300,000 bushels for the Government, to be delivered at Cairo. We regret to learn that a number of barges have been sunk, three of which, containing 3,300 bushels each, were snuk on the Sligo slide of the river, opposite the city. The weather yesterday morning opened up bright and clear, but in the afternoon the wind changed south and moderated. The river is falling fast, having fallen three feet since on rleat report, with eleven feet on the pier marks of the Moongashels bridge. The lee bas nearly stopped running out of the Allegheny. It is reported that the ice is gorged at Parkersburg. Business was only moderately hrisk at the river yesteday, owing to the ellipsery condition of the wharf. The steamers advertised are all loading. Domasons Blades.

While so much attention is directed to is insufficient to recover it. While we have more than the generous donors could have been making great discoveries and im-provements in the manufacture of steel, it I scarcely is remarkable that neither England hosens of serior country can produce an article equal to the Damascus olader which are so celebrated in history, nor has Damascus itaelf been able for several centuries post to make even a poor imitation of the work for which it was once eo celebrated.

These blaics are no myth, as some per-ons have imagined. They still exist, are shown in European collections. We have a specimen lying before us-2 short lines, running through the metal, but the elasticity and temper of the steel surpass all other kinds, and show such a union of sharp edge with great chasticity as no modern art can coual. The point of a sword could be bent to touch the hin, and spring back to its straight line, and I'ce same sword would cut through an ordinary exel weapon without harming its keen edge, er would pass with astounding facility through a silk shawl or hand'acrchief thrown into the air, severing it with a swift sharp tut. Scot's story of Saladin's sword, in the Talieman, is not an invention of the ro-

Very many and expensive experiments have been made to recover the lost art of making these blades, but without success. except in the one instance of the experi-ments of General Abosoff, a Russian officer of great ability, who grally seemed to suc-ceed in reproducing the old Dawneus steel. But even he was unable to do it with spficient certainty and regularity to leave his discoveries behind him in such a shape as to be of practical value to the world. For ef age since his death, in 1851, the Siberian works, to be of practical value to the world. which he superintended, have failed wholly of famine. I was horrified at the ghastly apto produce the required article, and the pearance which she presented. Her face was all to produce the required article, and the manufacture of such blades has entirely The theories of different persons had been that the peculiar lines and veins in the Damascus weapons were produced by some intermixture of other metals with the steel General Anosoff, after careful examination, came to the conclusion that they were but the marks of the crystallization, or the lines of carbon among the lines of steel crystals. while to see what energy a system of community with the lines visible, while to see what energy a strands at once, brought out more distinctly these marks of brought out more distinctly these marks of brought out more distinctly these works at ths peculiar manufacture. , Ilia works at Zlataoust became celebrated as the Birmingham and Sheffield of the Oural country, and the steel blades, arms, razors, and outlery of various kinds there made, were unquestionably the best products of the modern world.

The General was accustomed to exhibit to his visitors the exquisite perfection of his a little hillock which was outle to ould be made to perform; and he would also hew nails, bones, and other hard substances, with the same sword, without turning or nicking the edge. The highest authorities, speaking of Aussoff's steel, say that the result of his discoveries was 'to impress on east steel the clastic properties of a softer material" Capt. Abboit, a British officer highly competent to judge on this subject, said "the general fault of European blades is that, being forged of shear steel for the sake of elasticity, they are scarcely perceptible of the keen edge which cast steel will assume. The genius of Anosoff has triumphed over this objection, not in hardening the soft steel but in giving elasticity to the hard, and it may be doubted whether any fabric in the world cau com-pete with that of Zlataoust in the production of weapons combining au equal de-gree of edge and elasticity." Capt Abbott also states that he saw several of the rejected blades submitted to the breaking engine, to be re cast, and that they were "bent double, and back again, several times before they could be divided. The death of Anosoff seems to have committed this art again to oblivion. His proprized in Russia and among the Eastern princes as fully equal, both in beauty and n temper, to the most celebrated of the Damascus blades. But the art does not obey the will of the successors of Anosoff, and for the present we have nowhere in the world a manufacturer of Damascus blades.

MARY CANAVAN. AN INCIDENT OF THE IRISH FAMINE.

It became part of my lot in life to help the became part of my lot in life to help the Irish government during the eventful period of the Irish famine of 1846-7.

I was a Poor-Law Inspector, and had a large district in my charge. I had necessarily to go about a good deal and visit workhouses, hospitals, and relief stations in the discharge of my duties. My mode of conveyance, as a rule, was an ounside. of conveyance, as a rule, was an ontside litish jausting car, and with one horse, or rather indeed with a pony, I need of a day sometimes to get over 50 long Irish from my headquarters to visit a station in a very remote and wild part of my district, my manservant—coachman, groom, butler, valet, all comprised in ons very original and funny individual called "Mick" accompanying me. The night before I left on this particular journey, in which oc-curred an incident which I am about to relate, I told Mick to be sure to stock the "well" of the car with rye bread, which I used to bake in my own honse, and above all not to forget to fill my flask with brandy, which, as we shall presently see, was dy, which, as we shall presently see, wanted and altogether used for selfish purposes. Many a time when I have been driving along the wild roads I have seen people who, to my official knowledge, were in the receipt of the full amount of ration relief, literally looking starved. The avidity with which they seized and devoured the loaves of rye bread I used to give them from the "well" satisfied me that the money which was sent to ns Poor-Law Inspect-ors from all parts of the United Kingdom the manufacture of new weapons of war, to expend in any way we thought fit, and it is semewhat curious to note the fact that which for the most part we applied to the the method of making the best swords is a catablishment of bakelouses, did all the lost art, and all the skill of modern times good which it was intended to do, and even

I scarcely think I was ever out on a more remarkable that neither England nor lovely day than that to which I allude, and by other country can produce an article it one could only have felt that the people were not dying in hundreds throughout the district, and through the island gen-erally, such a day, amidst such scenery, would have brought its fullest enjoyment. Skirring along lovely lakes, above which rose hills clad with venerable beauty, sons have imagined. They still exist, drove some century, numerous and highly prized, in the hands by a mountain road which led by a long of the descendants of Saracen chieftains, descent to a wild and barren bog, stretch-and Eastern princes, and not unfrequently ing unbrokenly for many miles towards in Euronean collections. We the seacoast. As we got on the bog there was an indication that there had been s blade, rather a long knife than a sword, of turf road, but gradually its traces became that peculiar steel which modern arteannet more and more indistinct, and we had to that peculiar steel which modern arteannet produce. The peculiarity of the Damascus weapon is not only the beautiful surface, showing myriads of waving apd zig zag again, and I was enabled to shape my course for the relief station, which I was about to inspect,

The path, or road, or whatever else one might choose to call it, was straight, and so there was nothing to interrupt the view

Mick, who was never much inclined to wrap himse't up in himself, and had been discoursing eloquently on the value of good sound roads, giving me his private opinion as to the character of that on which we were then traveling, suddenly called out, What on earth, sir, is that before us

"Where?" said I.
"Don't you see, sir? The Lord save us a body sireiched across the road.'

We had not gone more than four or five bundred yards when we encountered a most abominable stench, which was so sickly that I determined to stop and ascertain what it was. [From the American Argriculturist, Jan., 1865.] Notes and Suggestions for January. A new year has coms-may it be a happy

A new year has coms—may it be a nappy one to all our readers, and may all the good plans mads for the future be carried out. Our vignette is suggestive of the farmer's most valuable winter crop—the crop of ideas. Books are multiplying, and so are readers. Cultivatore of the scil are every year realizing the advantages of gathering from books the views of scientifie men, and a knowledge of the practices of other farmers, that they may, by omparing them with their own, improve theories and their systems of farming. In this most interesting period of our country's history, no farmer can afford to neglect agricultural reading. The exigencies of the time make new crops profit able; they introduce new nations, open new markets, and give us new views upon agricultural as well as upon political and humanitarian subjects. Farm Accounts .- No farmer is true to his own interests who does not keep just as accurate accounts of his business as the best "business man." It is not so easy to keep accounts, as where every thing has a definite money value, but it may and should be done; and after a little practice we may soon get in the way of placing a just value on the labor of men and animals, our own time, &c One of the most important things is a correct inventory of everything that has value—of investments and stock in trade; of debts and dues; of live stock and implements; of manures in the ground and in the compost heap, &c., &c. Were a farmer only to take a good inventory ouce s year, and keep no other accounts, i would be an invaluable aid to him in regulating his future management.

Agricultural Reading .- Look over ou book list. Encourage the formation of an agricultural library in your neighborhood, where many books and periodicals may be kept for consultation.

Building.—Keep every thing neat and tidy, within and about the buildings-tools, chains, &c., if left out may be covered up in the snow, and easily lost. Repairing and painting implements are always in order f the weather favors.

Collars .- Open the windows and give change of air on warm, dry days; remove all decaying vegetables. l'rotect against

Cattle .- Oxen ought to be shod, and kept sharp, whether the ground is slippery or not. Feed in accordance with the labor damanded of them, but on no account let them fall off in fesh. Oven low in flesh are more liable to meet with accidents than others, and if a poor, lousy steer breaks a leg, nobody wants the beef, and it is not fit to eat; not so with ons in good condi-tion. Young cattle ought not to be pam-pered, but well fed, and kept in growing
